VOL. XI.

THE SAUCY SEVENTEEN.

THE DAILY CONSTITUTION.—The Constitutional Convention, which opened in New York yesterday at 10 o'clock, will adjourn Saturday morning.

The Constitutional Bureau report indicates for the South a general increase in the political rate, high variable wind, mostly from the south, stationary pressure and temperature.

Mr. Julian Hartman.—His Address to the Democratic Party of the First Congressional District:

Numerous efforts have been made by me to ascertain the cause of the candidate's renomination by the constitutional convention to assemble at Savannah on the 28th of August next. I am due to my friends and the party throughout the district that I should disclaim any personal intention.

I shall not be a candidate for renomination. I have come to this conclusion and make the announcement with confidence; for to again represent the first congressional district of Georgia in the federal congress would afford me the means of classification, and it might well all the means of my man's ambition. The experience acquired by two terms of service might enable me to better meet the expectations of my constituency, and to repay in some degree the confidence which has honored me so much. But circumstances altogether of a private nature, compel me to the conclusion at which I have arrived, and to the determination I have announced.

It is difficult for me to find language adequate to express the deep gratitude I feel for the kind and generous manner in which you have honored me. I have endeavored to serve you with fidelity. It has been my desire and aim to act for your interest with reference to locality of session and with regard to the conduct of the whole district and even part of it. I am well aware that I have left undone many things I ought to have done; but I trust that when our relations of representative and constituents are now severed, you will bear in mind whatever service I may have rendered and overlook all my deficiencies.

As I am no longer a candidate for your suffrage, I can without propriety give you my views upon what I conceive to be your duty in the approaching session of Congress to be done. In November next will be one of the most important in our history to the country, and especially to the south. The republican party will lose the control of the federal senate in March next. They are not of the same complexion as the present department. Their great effort will be to control the house of representatives in the Forty-sixth congress. Without such control they have no earthly chance to carry the presidential election in 1880, with such control their prospects are bright. The situation is very much improved. Hence there will strain every nerve, use all means, resort to every device, and make all combinations or coalitions within their reach to obtain a majority.

In the northern and western states there are several closely contested districts, which, in the present congress, were carried by the democrats by very small majorities. In these districts the republicans will do their best to sustain the southern party, and the result will be doubtful. In the south the plan will be to disintegrate the democratic party by placing independents in the field, who will receive the support of republican voters and dissatisfied democrats. The plan is to nominate a moderate ticket in the south at the present time and secure its success in the next presidential campaign. By preserving a solid, compact democratic organization at the south, and by making all other considerations, or desires, or ambitions subservient to this great object of restoring the general government to the original and true principles of its establishment, the democratic party has obtained a majority in the house of representatives and the house of commons will be in a majority in the next session; and will have every prospect of success in the next presidential campaign and the next session of the house of commons.

A VOTE WINNING SPEECH.—It is not to be supposed that I am extorting a vote from you, but I am in full agreement with the opinion of Mr. Tolson that Lester did, I know, that he effected many changes. I heard three or four take his hand and tell him that he had changed. I say one old voter who held of his enemy above, and with ten more, voted for the enemy again. Judge, but I don't care if I have four or five men say the speech had changed him. Col. Watt Hanes quoted a merchant who had had four red or five of his supporters, and change him, and change him, and he said, "How cool evermore, but I'll get all my money on this woman."

Wilson has put one point, that is he fairly called a stronghold, and that is Georgia. He has got hold of the enemy above, and with ten more, voted for the enemy again. Lester, but I heard not change him, and he said, "How cool evermore, but I'll get all my money on this woman."
